New looks coming for a new year

Sgt. Alexis R. Mulero
Combat Correspondent

The celebration of the New Year is the oldest of all holidays and has been welcomed on different dates throughout history.

It was first observed in ancient Babylon about 4,000 years ago. In the years around 2000 BC, the Babylonian New Year began with the first New Moon (actually the first visible crescent) after the first day of spring.

The Romans also celebrated the New Year in spring until 46 BC when Julius Caesar established what has come to be known as the Julian calendar. The Julian calendar's New Year is January 1st.

around the world. People in Muslim societies, for example, celebrate the New Year by wearing new clothes. Jewish people consider the day holy, and hold a religious ceremony at a meal with special foods. The Japanese prepare rice cakes at a social event the week before the New Year.

Whatever the custom, most people feel the same sentiment. With a new year, they can expect a new start. We wish each other good luck and promise ourselves to do better in the coming year.

Great Britain and its colonies in America adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1752, which is a modified version of the Julian calendar.

Ways of celebrating differ as well, according to customs and religions

On Jan. 1 here at MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay, Marines, Sailors, Soldiers, Airmen, family members and civilians visited friends, relatives and neighbors. Celebrations were held all over base. From the enlisted, staff and officers clubs, to the many homes here, visitors were met with music and plenty to eat and drink when dropping by to wish their loved ones and friends the best for the New Year.

In the year ahead, K-Bay will continue its modernization of the temporary lodging facility, bachelor enlisted quarters and housing on base.

In addition to the new housing and numerous other improvement projects, a new Iwo Jima memorial at the front gate is scheduled to be completed and unveiled in March.

Sgt. Alexis R. Mulero

Inside Master Sgt. Carmelo Guzman's house was one of many New Year's parties. One thing that stands out is the location. This house is one of the newest housing units available on base, but in 2002, just a few blocks away, another set of even newer houses will be completed.

Cpl. Roman Yurek

The Temporary Lodging Facility is filled nearly all year round with families arriving and leaving the base. Still, some families have to live in an off-base hotel until they receive housing or fly out. Currently, the TLF facility is having an additional 50 rooms built to help cut down on the number of families that have to live in a hotel.

MCCS launches customer-focused campaign

Campaign encourages all patrons to speak up regarding their wants and needs

Debbie Baker
MCCS Public Relations

In an attempt to serve our modern, politically-correct, rank and file society, euphemisms run fervently, but they can deafen and dull the mind. Therefore, when Marine Corps Base Hawaii residents read messages regarding the enhancement of their “quality of life,” how can they possibly know what that means? Quality of Life — what exactly does it mean? To better understand the myriad ways in which Marine Corps Community Services contributes to each patron aboard MCB Hawaii — and yes, to even identify the infamous “quality of life”

— the MCCS Marketing Department designed the campaign: “From You For You.” The “From You For You” campaign portrays that whatever patrons put into MCCS is what they can expect to get from MCCS. A portion of every dollar spent within MCCS goes back to (oh, here it comes again) enhance the quality of life for military personnel and their family members. In layman’s terms, the more money generated into MCCS results in more lessons offered through Youth Activities, new equipment at the Semper Fitness Center, lower costs at the Base Theater, new golf paths at the Kaneohe Bay Klipper Golf Course, and the list continues. With every dollar you spend with MCCS, feel good knowing that ultimately you are investing in your family and in yourself. You can enhance the integrity of the “From You For You” campaign and tell us what you think. How are our services? How is our selection? Drop us a line through our “Touch Base with MCCS” comment card program. Touch Base cards are located near the entrance of most MCCS facilities. Or, visit us online at talktomccs@usmc-mccs.org Your comment will be addressed within five to seven working days. MCCS values what you think. We know you have a choice when selecting merchandise and services, and we thank you for allowing us to continue to provide the best possible services and facilities for our military community.

The equipment in the weight room at the Semper Fit Center was briefly moved to building 1583 so the floor could be resurfaced in the gym. Upon reopening the weight room patrons were treated to a larger selection of cardio vascular equipment.

Sgt. Richard W. Holtgraver Jr.
Combat Correspondent

The Semper Fit Center aboard Marine Corps Base Hawaii went through several renovations during 2001.

One the more notable projects made to improve the center was a complete resurfacing and repainting of the hardwood floors of the basketball and volleyball courts, racquetball courts and aerobic room.

The weight room wasn't forgotten either as the gym shut down and relocated to building 1583 for almost a month in order to resurface the weight room floor.

A need for more cardiovascular exercise machines at the Semper Fitness Center was fulfilled when more state-of-the-art treadmills, cross-trainers, stepmills and recumbent bikes were bought for the gym.

Patrons of the fitness center will see more changes in 2002.

Just one of the new programs coming to the center in 2002 will be 10-minute chair massages in the front lobby every Monday.

Also, the hours of operation are going change, with earlier opening times and closing times.

The basketball and volleyball courts and the Semper Fit Center were resurfaced and painted during 2001.

New state-of-the-art stepmills were brought into the Semper Fit Center to meet the increased demands for more cardio machines.

K-Bay Youth Sports tips off another basketball season

Sgt. Richard W. Holtgraver Jr.
Combat Correspondent

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Hawaii—The MCB Hawaii youth basketball program began its eight-week season on Saturday, at the Conroy Bowl here.

The basketball program contains six age divisions with children ranging in age from five to 15-years-old.

Kaneohe Bay posted 15 teams this year, including a team from Manana Housing and one team from Kahuku High School, into the Hawaii Youth Sports League, which is hosted by the Army.

For the next two months the teams will put forth their best efforts playing their games on Saturdays at various locations, to include MCB Hawaii K-Bay, Hickam Air Force Base, Schofield Barracks, Fort Shafter, Wheeler Army Air Field, Pearl Harbor and Aliamanu Military Reservation.

One of the goals the K-Bay teams will try to accomplish this year is to instill confidence into the children through organized sports, according to Clark Abbey, sports specialist with Personal Services.

To accomplish this, Abbey encourages everyone from MCB Hawaii to come out and cheer on the children during their home games.

"Support for our youth comes from all directions. It comes from parent support, volunteer coaches and also our community," said Abbey. "By attending our home games at K-Bay, the community can impact our youth with positive re-enforcement, building morale and self-esteem.

"Community attendance can also be a positive influence on our youth athletes that can lead to a healthy lifestyle in their future. Who knows one of these kids might be the next Joel Lono," Abbey added.

With the season just underway no one knows how the K-Bay basketball teams will do.

But that's part of the fun, not only for the young participants on the court, but also for the fans cheering in the stands.

To find out more information on game times and locations contact Abbey at 254-7610.

‘Iwo’ base prepared

Sgt. Robert A. Carlson

A crew from Dick Pacific Construction pours concrete to form the base of the Iwo Jima Memorial monument near the front gate of MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay. The Pacific War Memorial Association and MCB Hawaii plan to unveil the statue cast from the original mold used for the Iwo Jima Memorial in Newington, Conn., in mid-March.

Toastmasters speak no fear

Cpl. Jacques-René Hébert
MarForPac Public Affairs

CAMP H.M. SMITH, Hawaii – For some people, getting in front of a group and speaking comes easily and naturally. However, for most of us, the experience is often traumatic.

As you begin, your breathing speeds up and your heart rate increases. A sheen of sweat materializes on your forehead and your eyes shift toward the door. “Help!” a voice in your mind calls to the heavens. Meanwhile, the eyes of your audience are boring into your soul, analyzing every sentence, every word, every movement you make.

Sound familiar?

To a s t m a s t e r s International, however, is a group dedicated to helping people who normally shudder and quake at the thought of speaking publicly.

“T o a s t m a s t e r s (International) is for anyone who is sincerely interested in improving their communication and leadership skills,” Toastmasters’ Camp H.M. Smith-chapter president Army Lt. Col. Michael Sands, assistant foreign disclosure officer, U.S. Pacific Command, explained. “Our organization does that through public speaking.”

T o a s t m a s t e r s International is a non-profit organization governed by a Board of Directors elected by the membership. Ralph C. Smedley established the first Toastmasters group on Oct. 22, 1924, in Santa Ana, Calif. Smedley conceived and developed the idea of helping others to speak more effectively. The idea caught on, and more clubs were formed.

The group prides itself on turning out confident orators who easily communicate ideas in a concise yet humorous manner, according to group member, or “toastmaster” Marine Maj. Franklin McLain, ordinance and equipment readiness officer, Marine Forces Pacific.

“This group is ideal for young servicemembers who are trying to get a leg up on promotion competition,” expounded McLain. “Communication is very important at the lower level, when you’re trying to get ahead.”

Organization members hone their rhetorical skills the first and third Tuesdays of each month, as they each conduct a meeting by themselves.

“It’s imperative that each ‘toastmaster’ know how to conduct meetings with confidence,” stated Sands. “Each time one of the members guides a meeting, it helps build that confidence in speaking in front of others.”

During the meeting, the group concentrates on three different areas they feel are important: impromptu speaking, prepared speeches, and evaluations.

“Evaluation is key,” explained Sands. “That’s where speakers get feedback from the other ‘toastmasters’ on every facet of their speeches.”

The majority of the Camp Smith chapter is personnel from PACOM and MarForPac.

“The benefit to commands is tremendous, since it makes each member able to brief generals better, or simply relay word to their staff,” said McLain.

For more information, contact Michael Sands at 477-7546, Franklin McLain at 477-8585, or visit the Toastmaster International website at www.toastmasters.org.
